The Franc Drops—Look Out.
Heartless La Follette.
The Sensitive Japanese.
Our Third Richest Given.
By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

A bad drop in the value of the French franc, falling below five cents, was a dangerous sign for Europe yesterday.

What money changers think of the franc tells their opinion of European conditions. And their opinion is usually close to the fact.

They have their hand on the big artery of finance, and that tells the story.

La Follette is apparently heartless, for he intends to make congress return to Washington after the conventions, and go on working.

If he would be content to make the poor congressmen work, when they would like to be playing and mending their fences, and if he would not run independently for the presidency, La Follette's republican friends would be much obliged to him.

The Progressive Voters' league of Michigan indorses La Follette for the presidency. But that doesn't mean that he will run.

The opinion of some that know La Follette well is that he will not run independently. The result would be that he would elect a democrat, by defeating Coolidge, or that Coolidge would defeat him and the democrat combined. Neither result would please La Follette or be good for him politically or physically.

Japan will celebrate solemnly "in the anti-Asiatic spirit movement" the funeral of a Japanese who killed himself in protest against American treatment of Asiatics.

That is a fashion in Japan, or it was in the old days of the Samurai; if your honor was offended to sit on the doorstep of the man that offended you, and with a sharp knife especially made for the purpose, perform Chara-Kiri by disemboweling yourself.

We sympathize with the subject of the Mikado who thought it necessary to rip open his abdomen because we won't accept Asiatics here. But we don't get too much excited about it.

Millions of Chinese are shut out of Japan, from which all Chinese labor is excluded. If those Chinese took it into their heads to kill themselves, Japan would say, 'Sorry, but we can't change our laws on that account."

George F. Baker, who is undoubtedly one of three richest men in America (some even think he is the richest), has given $5,000,000 to Harvard to endow a school of business administration. Mr. Baker, who would surely be the world's richest man if he could pass Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, is 84 years old, and a brisk giver of millions.

He gave Cornell $1,835,000, $2,000,000 to the Red Cross, $1,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, $700,000 to Columbia university, etc.

Just what a "school of business administration" can do remains to be seen. Will it make the sons of very rich men interest themselves in business? Probably not, and that's fortunate for the country. Too many hereditary millionaires or billionaires would be bad.

Reporters, reformers, friends of democracy and equality, are talking about "the millions that will be spent to cheat the law in a recent atrocious Chicago murder. The sons of two rich men murdered a boy whose father also is rich. Money will be spent of course. Lawyers and alienists will get big fees. But the thing will not run into millions. And the case has had so much publicity that the millions would not be effective, even if they were spent.

It would be bad for the public frame of mind, bad for all those concerned if there should be any justifiable suspicion of money's influence in that particular murder case.

It is to be hoped that solemn gentlemen won't overdo their moralizing about the lack of religious education in public schools being responsible for crime. It would be easy to compile a list of criminals that have recently gone from the death house to the gallows or the electric chair that never had anything but religious education.

Link Franks Slayers With Death of Student

Bullet Which Killed Freeman Tracy Fits Leopold's Pistol Coroner Announces.

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, June 3—A declaration that the bullet which killed Freeman Lewis Tracy, a student, on January 23, last, fitted one of the pistols of Nathan Leopold, who with Richard Loeb, both sons of millionaires, have confessed the kidnaping and slaying of Robert Franks, 14 year old boy, was made by Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, today.

The physician's statement is the first clew the authorities have found to connect the kidnapers with the Tracy murder, one of the most mysterious slaying which ever confronted police.

Chicago, June 3—States Attorney Crowe prepared today to submit to the grand jury the confessions of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons and university students, kidnapers and slayers of 14 year old Robert Franks, while investigators sought any connection with them and the unsolved killing of Freeman Lewis Tracy, also a student, and a mutilation attack last fall on Charles Ream, taxi cab chauffeur.

Identifies Assailants

Ream has declared that the two held in the county jail in the custody of the Cook county sheriff by court orders are the assailants who kidnaped him in an automobile and threw him out of the machine after a mutilation operation. When taken to the state's attorney's office by newspaper men Reams shouted, "It's them, it's them," and then fainted away when he saw the boys. Later he was positive in his identification.

The body of Tracy, a bullet wound through his temple, was found five days before the attack on Reams.

Find Letter in Car

Finding of a letter written to Jacob Franks by the boys in a Michigan Central railroad car in New York has completed the collection of evidence made by the state, according to Mr. Crowe, with the exception of a portable typewriter on which the ransom demand was written. Divers are searching a park lagoon in which the typewriter was hurled.

The letter found in the railroad car was a part of the elaborate system of directions to Mr. Franks for the delivery of the $10,000 ransom, Mr. Crowe said. Mr. Franks was directed in the letter to prepare the money, then directed by telephone to board a train and car in which a letter was placed directing him where to throw the money from the window. The plan failed when Mr. Franks forgot the address of a drug store and when the body of a boy found in a culvert early in the day was identified as his missing son.

Assigned to Cells

Last night Leopold, whose investigations in ornithology were praised by authorities, and Loeb, university graduate at 18, took their places in line with vagrants and drug addicts in the jail receiving line and were bathed, examined and registered. They were assigned special cells and later given permanent locations, each with a cell mate, acording to the warden. They registered their occupations as students. Leopold refused to answer questions asked by jail officials saying he did so by the advice of his counsel.

R. J. Dudley Is Promoted to Manager of Division

Announcement has been made here that R. J. Dudley, Waupaca, better known as "Dud" in central Wisconsin athletic circles where he has established a reputation as a baseball umpire and bowler of no little ability, has been promoted to manager of the Wausau division of the Armour sales territory. Mr. Dudley will fill the vacancy caused by the death of J. J. Kiley.

Don W. Tracey, Merrill, has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused through the promotion of Mr. Dudley.

HIRST MAY HAVE FIELD FOR SELF

REPORTS ARE BEING CIRCULATED THAT PERRY AND KREUTZER WILL WITHDRAW IN HIS FAVOR

Madison, Wis.—The candidacy of A. R. Hirst for the governorship is expected to narrow the conservative field to one candidate according to information reaching here. Indications are that other conservative candidates will drop from the race and leave Mr. Hirst as the sole standard bearer of the conservative cause.

Charles Perry, assemblyman from Wauwatosa, some time ago declared that he would run for the governorship. He is now not expected to enter the field. A. L. Kreutzer, Wausau, who has announced his candidacy for the governorship declared that he would not withdraw in favor of Mr. Hirst. However, it is reported that his friends are at work to induce him to quit the race.

Has Philipp Endorsement

Probably the most important announcement from the Hirst camp is the unqualified endorsement of E. L. Philipp, former governor. This means a definite end to the talk of Philipp's candidacy which has been prevalent for a number of months.

Hirst's candidacy promises to bring complete conservative support. Besides Mr. Philipp's endorsement, former governor Francis E. McGovern has written a letter to Mr. Hirst endorsing him.

Plans Vigorous Campaign

The Hirst campaign will be in full swing within a week. Campaign headquarters were opened in the Park Hotel in Madison on Monday. On Wednesday Mr. Hirst will go to Milwaukee to confer with political leaders and some time following this a campaign manager will be chosen.

Hirst will conduct a vigorous campaign. He is the best known of all conservative candidates who have had their eyes on the governor's chair due to his long identification with the state's highway problems and his success as a road builder.

Search With Warrant After Arrest Is O. K. Court Holds

(By Associated Press)

Madison, June 3.—Search of a suitcase or any other container may legally be made by officers if a search warrant is obtained after the arrest of the individual, the supreme court declared today in affirming the ruling of a municipal court holding Sam Camale guilty of liquor violations. Camale was arrested without a search warrant and the suitcase was searched later when a warrant was obtained. The court also sustained the validity of the search warrant.

MRS. I. P. WITTER URGES SUPPORT OF PROHIBITION LAWS

LOCAL WOMAN, PRESIDENT OF STATE SOCIAL WORK CONFERENCE, OPENS BIG MEETING AT GREEN BAY

(By Associated Press)

Green Bay, Wis., June 3—Social welfare workers must place the stamp of disapproval upon any attempt to break down law enforcement, declared Mrs. Isaac P. Witter, president of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, in the opening address before the welfare and social workers of the state, who assemble here today in a 3 day biennial convention.

"There may be "conscientious objectors" to the prohibition law, but how can we in the light of certain facts waver for a moment in our attitude?" she asked her hearers.

Drunkenness Is Of Past

The facts substantiating the success of prohibition were forcefully presented when the head of the welfare organization asked:

"Do you know that drunkenness in our streets is almost a thing of the past?

"That all of the patented cures in the United States but one have been closed?

"And have we not the testimony of manufacturers, bankers, physicians and social workers that the condition of the working man and his family is infinitely better than in the pre-Volstead days?"

The speaker then referred to the apparent disregard for the prohibition law and the increase of lawlessness since its enactment, and questioned "but would any one think of doing away with laws regulating traffic because they are broken in a thousand cities every day in the year? Or would it be better to repeal our laws against murder because the commandment "Thou shalt not kill" has never done away with the slaying of man by his fellow man?"

Outlines Purpose

The Conference executive began her address by outlining the scope of the state organization, in its unlimited activities of social service and asserted that there is a growing tendency to look to the Conference for leadership in community problems.

The purpose of the Wisconsin conference according to the speaker shaped itself into four general lines of activity, which were summarized as follows:

1. To furnish a medium for exchange of ideas and to provide information and data in regard to all forms of social work to the people of the state through the conference, bulletins and lectures.

2. To help local communities to the solution of their problems and to be in a position to advise in any measure effecting the general welfare of so-

Mangled Bodies of Two U. S. Balloonists Found

(By Associated Press)

Belleville, Ill., June 3.—The mangled bodies of Dr. C. Leroy Meisinger of the United States weather bureau, Washington, and Lieut. James T. Neely of Philadelphia, who left Scott field late yesterday in the army balloon S-3 for the ninth of a series of air test flights, were found near Bement, Ill., today. The balloon had exploded and was destroyed by fire.

Bement is about 150 miles northeast of Scott field. Both men were pilots but Lieutenant Neely was in charge of the balloon while Dr. Meisinger made his observations.

Invite Nekoosa C. of C. To Join Rapids On Big Tour

Wisconsin Rapids Chamber of Commerce officials have invited the Nekoosa Chamber of Commerce to join the Rapids big Booster Tour June 19. President L. P. Daniels announced today. Enhanced by several cars from Nekoosa, the motorade will be larger than the last year's procession. The route will approximately be the same as a year ago, although pathfinder W. F. Anderson has not laid out this year's route. He expects to take presilent Daniels and other officials over the proposed route on June 12 and will announce the itinerary immediately afterward.

To Hold Registration

This year all cars travelling in the motorade on the big tour will be requested to register at the Hotel Witter, Wednesday June 18, where the driver will be assigned with number by drawing and will also be provided with banners, souvenirs, etc.

"We urge that all those who intend to go will be prompt about registering," president Daniels stated," as it will lead to much less confusion the following day and will permit us to get a much earlier start.

To Advertise the Fourth

As was the case last year the Booster Parade will be for the purpose of advertising the big July 4th celebration which the people of the whole county and vicinity are cordially invited to attend. The committee says: "We're going to make good with a vengeance this year." From the looks of the program arranged for the coming fourth there isn't much doubt about the this year's program being superior to last year.

Windshield posters will be put on local cars by the Chamber and officers ask all car owners to leave the posters on until after the Fourth.

Child Labor Amendment Passes Congress; Goes To States For Approval

Washington, June 3.—Child labor amendments to the constitution went before the states today for final action.

The provisions, without emergency federal government limitations, restrict or prohibit labor of children under 18 years of age. The bill adopted by the house was approved last night by the senate 61 to 23 and now awaits ratification by three-fourths of the states to become a part of the nation's fundamental laws. Although President Coolidge has expressed his favor of the amendment, his approval of the resolution is not required.

A dozen efforts to modify the resolution during the senate debate, in which almost every member present participated, were voted down and it was adopted as it came from the house with 40 republicans, 19 democrats and 2 farmer-labor ballots supporting it and 17 democrats, and 6 republicans voting in opposition.

Congress Will End Session On Saturday

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 3.—Congress will adjourn next Saturday under a house resolution adopted today by the senate.

Washington, June 3.—Sentiment in the senate against the adjournment of congress next Saturday as provided in a concurrent resolution already approved by the house, rallied today around a substitute resolution introduced by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, the republican insurgent leader, proposing that instead congress recess then until July 7.

Although Senator La Follette's resolution was in order today, leaders had planned to hold up action on adjournment proposals pending enactment of the urgent deficiency bill providing funds for the execution of the bonus law; and they were uncertain whether either would be taken up today. Indications were, however, that there would be sufficient non-partisan strength to put the adjournment resolution through the senate just as there was in the house since the opposition through the senate just as there was in the house since the opposition there, which included 85 democrats and 59 republicans, was described as representing the views to the need for relief legislation similar to those held by La Follette and his supporters.

Hon. Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming will be the permanent chairman of the republican national convention opening here on Tuesday, June 10, William M. Butler, national committeeman from Massachusetts and manager of the Coolidge campaign announced this morning.

Wisconsin Insurance Act Held Valid by High Court

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., June 3—Validity of the Wisconsin standard provisions insurance act was sustained in effect by the state supreme court today when it affirmed the decision from the Dane county circuit court in the case of the United States Fidelity Guarantee Insurance company against Insurance Commissioner W. Stanley Smith.

The court held that the railroad passenger accident plan submitted by the plaintiff company to be illegal under Wisconsin laws. Suit to test validity of the Wisconsin standard provisions insurance law and an order of the State Insurance Commissioner Smith was brought by six insurance firms, who contested the commissioner's jurisdiction in the case decided.

Polishes Car With Dollar Bills; Sent to Asylum

(By Associated Press)

Oshkosh, Wis., June 3.—After polishing up the nickel trimmings of another person's car with dollar bills, Carl H. Ziebell declared he was possessed of a devil and disrobed at the MacMillan company plant. The police were called and Ziebell was examined and committed to the Northern hospital for the insane.

SECRECY CLAUSE DECLARED VALID

STATE SUPREME COURT REVERSES CIRCUIT COURT DECISION ON TEST OF PUBLICITY PROVISION

(By Associated Press)

Madison, June 3.—The secrecy clause of the state income tax law was held constitutional by the state supreme court today when it reversed the decision of Circuit Court Judge Edgar Werner in Dane county in the case of William Juneau, Milwaukee, against the state tax commission.

The secrecy clause case attracted wide attention in Wisconsin, primarily because it was of foremost interest before the last legislature. The law was advocated by Governor Blaine and passed by the legislature. Its primary purpose was to avoid alleged incorrect income tax returns.

Brought Test Case

William J. Juneau, Milwaukee brought the suit against the tax commission merely as a test case and was supported in his contention by many other firms and individuals. Juneau attacked constitutionality of the law on grounds that the secrecy clause infringed upon the constitutionality rights of the individual and does "irreparable injury" to his personal business. This contention was sustained by Circuit Judge E. V. Werner, sitting in Dane county court and appeal to the supreme court taken by the state.

Claim Court Erred

The state's chief contentions in its appeal to the higher court follow: The court erred in finding that unrestricted disclosure of income tax returns will not benefit the state in the enforcement of revenue laws nor assist in assessment and collection of taxes; it erred in holding that there is danger that the plaintiff may suffer injury to his credit and business affairs; the constitutional rights of income tax returns. The state further argued that the statute will assist in preventing fradulent tax returns and will carry out the general principle of law that public records may be inspected.

Band Concert Season to Open Thursday Evening

The ever popular city band concerts, which for the past decade have become a part of the city life during the summer months, will again be commenced next Thursday evening according to an announcement made today by Director E. A. Lambert.

Regular weekly rehearsals during the winter months has served to train the thirty-five pieces, of which the band is made up at present, in many fine new numbers which will be included in the Thursday evening program. The concert will be played at the court house, beginning at eight o'clock.

Features of the opening concert will be a cornet duet, a vocal number and a descriptive suit in four parts, "The Destruction of Atlantis."

World Fliers Rest Today Before Hop to Shanghai

(By Associated Press)

Kogashima, Japan, June 3.—The American aviators flying around the world spent today in rest and tuning up their planes after the steady flight from Kushimoto to here yesterday. They hope to hop off for the flight to Shanghai tomorrow. On this jump of about 500 miles straight across the China sea they will have the aid of a number of American destroyers. The destroyers have been stationed in line across the sea at intervals of about 60 miles.

Most of the attention was given to the flag plane the Chicago, which experienced some engine trouble yesterday on the flight from Kushimoto. Because of this trouble to the aviators, Lieutenant Smith, acting commander of the flight, was forced to make an emergency descent near here, but he and his mechanics were able to get their motor in working shape again and continued in their position.

PRESIDENT WILL ASK NEW TAX LAW AT NEXT SESSION

SIGNS REDUCTION MEASURE BUT SERVES NOTICE IT IS ONLY ACCEPTABLE AS TEMPORARY RELIEF

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 3—A new federal tax law is on the statute books today but it will have to weather a determined fight by the administration to obtain a law more to its liking at the next session of congress to remain there.

Asks "Economic" Measure

President Coolidge served notice in a statement issued coincident with the signing of the tax reduction bill yesterday that he would spend all his efforts to obtain passage next session of a bill "less political and more economic."

Despite its "obvious defects" the president said in his statement that he had signed the bill as it served the best interests of the country and because of "its advantages as a temporary relief and temporary adjustment of business conditions," adding that "corrections of its defects may be left to the next session of congress."

Is Not Tax Reform

The bill which the president declares represents more nearly tax reduction and not tax reform, cuts federal revenues by amounts estimated at $361,000,000 for the next fiscal year, and reduces tax rates to the lowest levels since 1917. Almost every federal taxpayer will feel the relief, although the tax payers' pocket book will not feel the actual benefit of the reduction on income tax rates applicable to this year until he pays them in 1925. He is granted a 25 percent reduction on income tax payments for the current year now due. The repeal of many excise taxes such as those on telephone and telegraph messages, soft drinks, candy, and theater tickets of 50 cents or less also will be dealt with within 30 days.

Preparations for the administration of the act went forward today in the treasury and and estimate of $20,000,000 for refunding the 25 percent retroactive reductions to those who payed 1923 income taxes in full March 15 was before Director Lord of the budget. These refunds for which congress must make necessary appropriations are to be payed as quickly as possible with applications from tax payers to whom they are due.

Directions Issued

Official directions were issued today by the treasury department covering the processes that a tax payer should go through in determining how he should pay his taxes under the new ruling.

"If at any time you filed your returns you paid one-half of the amount of your tax report, no payment will be due until September 15

"If at any time you filed your returns you paid only one-fourth of your tax report you must pay on or before June 15 one half of the amount paid by you when you filed your report."

The main point to be borne in mind is that one-half of the taxes due this year must have been paid on or before June 15.

Payment Due June 15

The usual notices have been issued by the internal revenue collectors reminding the income tax payers that the second installment of the tax is due June 15. Of special interest to tax payers is the provision in a clause of the new revenue law to the effect that tax on incomes received by individuals in the calendar year of 1923 will be reduced by 25 per cent. This means that every individual who is subject to income tax will be relieved of one-fourth of his tax liabilities which he reported on returns filed on or prior to March 15, or if the tax payer paid in full that amount, he will receive a refund of one-fourth of the payments.

Oppose Consolidation of Army-Navy Departments

Washington, June 3.— Opposing consolidation of the war and navy departments, the joint congressional committee on reorganization of executive departments in a report submitted today recommended establishment of a new department of education and relief.

Milwaukee Gas Lower; No Cut in This City

Despite Milwaukee dealers announcing a cut of 1 cent per gallon in the price of gasoline no cut has been ordered for this vicinity by the Standard Oil Company or independent companies which have stations in this city. Rumors about the city today stated that the cut will go into effect at Stevens Point at once, but dealers here stated that no cut is contemplated.

MUSCLE SHOALS

The report of the senate agricultural committee should put an end for all time to the effort to make a gift of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford, and incidentally to consideration of the other offers that have been made for the big Alabama power project.

The wisdom of the Norris proposal for government operation of the Shoals plant is doubtful. Efficiency, enterprise and economy in operation are not linked in the public mind with governmental entry into the realm of business. But it is desirable that the government retain such control over the nation's water power resources as to prevent for all time their exploitation in any interest but that of the public.

Water power has an increasingly important part to play in the future development of America. As the cost of generating power by steam mounts, as it is sure to, those who hold control of water power sites will wield a power which, if not restrained, will prove a menace to the freedom of individual enterprise and the equality of opportunity upon which this nation's industrial development has been based. Muscle Shoals, the largest single source of water power in the United States, should never be permitted to pass beyond the control of the American people, in whose service it should be employed.

A system of government ownership of the entire plant with private operation and distribution of the power under certain well defined regulations may prove the most satisfactory solution.

SIGNING THE TAX BILL

If there is one-half as much the matter with the next tax bill as President Coolidge says there is it must appear to the ordinary citizen that the chief executive has done us a doubtful service in signing it. The evils of presidential domination of congress, as experienced under the hands of such self-willed administrators as Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, may be unfortunate for the country, but at least there is something positive about such strong-arm methods that is entirely missing in a president who condemns the acts of congress at the very moment he affixes his signature thereto.

Contemporary Comment

BLAINE'S POSITION

The governor's sudden insistence on changes by the highway commission must impress Wisconsin people as a peculiar and dubious position. There is little restraint, little dignity and not much logic in the governor's letters. But there is a sharp and arbitrary attack on a commission which includes at least two outstanding figures—State Geologist Hotchkiss and Dean F. E. Turneaure. The vehemence seemingly directed against these men and the state highway engineer suggests looking for an issue, rather than concern for the highways and consideration of highway costs.

Most of Wisconsin's people have watched our highway development with gratification and pride. They have believed the highway commission a body that attended to its work, giving its thought to highways rather than politics. A good deal better case than Governor Blaine attempts to make out is needed to convince the state that the commission is "in politics."

To not a few people it will appear that the governor's attack, coupled with his wish to make the highway commission wholly appointive, suggests that the commission hasn't been in politics enough. Wisconsin has had some vivid and disgusting examples of what politics can do with wholly appointive commissions.

It will take a good deal better logic than has so far appeared to make the people of Wisconsin believe that a commission can be taken out of politics by removing from it men whose place has not been the reward of politics, but of eminent fitness for the work that body has to do. If Governor Blaine should drive such men from the service of the state, he would have the wrong end of an issue.—Milwaukee Journal.

How Things Look to THE FARMER

By O. M. KILE

Chicago, Ill.—This seems to be the accepted vantage point from which to go gunning for farmers' votes—votes which all admit will play an important part, perhaps a decisive part, in the coming elections. All the more prominent presidential possibilities have offices or at least publicity connections here and several others are represented who merely hope to be prominent.

Senator LaFollette's recent entry in the Chicago list of campaigners is taken to mean not only that he is definitely in the presidential race but that he will make a determined stand in Illinois. Newton Jenkins, the young attorney of the American Farm Bureau Federation who ran for the senatorial nomination on a farmer-labor platform and succeeded in annexing enough votes to bring about the defeat of Senator McCormick, sees the probability of a big LaFollette vote among Illinois farmers. Jenkins polled a hundred thousand votes down state and some twenty thousand in the city of Chicago. Jenkins bases his conclusions on the idea that since there is but little difference between the programs of the two old parties, the "protest" vote would go to LaFollette. This, Jenkins thinks, will be large next fall.

One of the newer boomlets is that of the Honorable David Franklin Houston, secretary of agriculture and later secretary of the treasury, during the Wilson administration. While Mr. Houston is expected to appeal to agricultural interests because of his former connection with and service for agriculture, yet as college president, banker, economist and now a director of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, his interests are represented as being sufficiently varied to appeal virtually to all classes. But Mr. Houston is not a vote getter. In agricultural circles he is remembered chiefly as a cold and unapproachable proposition, difficult to deal with. If the boom launched in Mr. Houston's behalf is expected to draw nourishment from the farm vote, it is very likely doomed to an early death.

When former congressman James Good was put in charge of the western branch of the Coolidge campaign at Chicago, it was understood that his purpose was to "sell" Coolidge to the farmer. Diligent inquiry in that territory fails, however, to disclose any progress along that line. The general opinion among farm leaders is that the average farmer of the Middlewest and West still looks upon Mr. Coolidge as a cold, analytical minded sort of gentleman who regards the western farmer and his troubles as an interesting problem in economics but to be viewed purely from the academic viewpoint.

They are inclined to look upon Mr. Coolidge's New England farm experience as something of a backyard garden affair and but poorly qualifying him to understand and sympathize with the present desperate struggle so many western farmers find themselves up against. The idea prevails that Mr. Coolidge has never been west.

The above is written without regard to the facts concerning Mr. Coolidge's real knowledge and understanding of the agricultural situation. I am merely reporting the average farmer's viewpoint and pointing out the fact that nothing visible has been done in the Chicago territory to combat or overcome that idea.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS GUESTS OF TRIBUNE AT "POWDER RIVER"

Do you remember that creepy feeling that ran up and down your spine when you were standing knee deep in mire, in those front line trenches, between 4 and 5 a. m., waiting for the signal to go "over the top?" Then came the whisper "Powder River"—Let's Go! This battle cry was used in the front lines immediately after "Powder River" Thompson, a cowboy from Montana, was killed in action. He was one of the first to go "over" carrying the American Flag. Wisconsin Rapids is to have its first view of the remarkable war film, "Powder River" opening today at the Ideal Theatre, for a three day engagement, under the auspices of the Playground committee of the American Legion. This picture has received the unanimous and enthusiastic endorsement of press, pulpit, schools and public wherever shown, the enthusiasm of the public being attested to by the fact that it has broken all house records for attendance in a majority of cities played.

"Powder River" is unique in motion picture history. It has no love story, no expensive director guiding it safely through its course and no temperamental stars cast for stellar roles. In spite of this it contains a larger "human interest" element than any film that has ever been placed on exhibition, as it is a faithful recording of the splendid work done by our soldiers on the battlefields of France.

The story of the soldier in wartime is unfolded before your eyes, the hardships and the good times are shown with equal impartiality. At nearly every performance of "Powder River" certain faces are recognized in the film, by relatives or friends and oftentimes by the owner himself who had almost forgotten that there ever was a war. This is a fitting testimonial to the fine spirit and heroism shown by our soldiers, and it is recommended strongly that every man, woman and child see "Powder River."

All Gold Star Mothers will be admitted free to the Ideal at any of the performances by merely showing their insignia.

MILWAUKEE LADY SAYS IT IS WORTH $10 BOTTLE

Mrs. Fred Pfennig Gives Tanlac Full Credit For Restoring Strength.

"Knowing as I do what a wonderful medicine Tanlac is I would buy it if it costs ten dollars a bottle," is the high valuation placed on the famous treatment by Mrs. Fred Pfennig, 1605 Claybourn St., Milwaukee, Wis.

"For a year past I have been so afflicted with indigestion that I could scarcely eat anything. What I did eat caused gas to collect around my heart and almost cut off my breath. These attacks were attended by such severe pains that I could hardly stand it.

"Tanlac set my stomach in order and then backache, nervousness, dizziness and that tired feeling all went away and left me 11 lbs., heavier and feeling like a new woman. I am still taking Tanlac and am gaining more in weight and strength every day. I am glad to help spread the good news about Tanlac."

Hunt's Washington Letter

By HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Staff Writer

Washington, D. C.—The Ku Klux Klan issue threatens to make confusion more confused at the Democratic national convention.

Backers of Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, the only presidential candidate who has taken a flat-footed stand in opposition to the Klan, announce their intention of making a determined fight to write into the Democratic platform a specific and definite anti-Klan plank.

The very threat of such procedure is enough to cause chills and fever in the delegations from states where the Klan is intrenched, and to prostrate with acute ague all candidates who have "pussy-footed" on the Klan issue.

If the Klan plank is actively agitated, it may give the Fiery Cross in this year's convention a position even surpassing that of Bryan's famous "Crown of Thorns" in '96.

As one outsider puts it, after looking over the Underwood-Al Smith delegations, it may become a contest of the Fiery Cross versus the Holy Cross.

—o—

The threat of a Klan and anti-Klan lineup at the convention also opens interesting speculation as to a possible coalition between the Underwood-Smith forces.

Smith will have at the start some 400 votes, Underwood about 100. Opposed to these will be McAdoo with some 440. The remaining 150-odd will be scattering "favorite son" votes for the dark-horse delegation.

Not until disintegration of some one of the three major blocks begins can any candidate be within gun-shot of nomination. And this time is variously set as from Monday, June 30, to Friday, July 4.

In addition to the probable battle over an anti-Klan plank, another fight that will have to be settled before the balloting on candidates begins will be precipitated over the traditional two-thirds rule.

This rule, under which a Democratic nominee must receive two-thirds of the total votes in the convention, instead of the bare majority necessary for a Republican selection, was adopted originally on the advice of Andrew Jackson. As a Jacksonian policy, it is worshipped and revered as among the most sacred of Democratic institutions.

But when a two-thirds rule blocks the selection of a candidate who might be able to muster a safe majority, the rule immediately loses its sanctity to the backers of that particular candidate.

In this case, it is the followers of McAdoo who propose to force the fight to set aside the two-third requirement and substitute a bare majority as sufficient for nomination.

McAdoo himself is said to oppose the move, feeling that it is unwise to advance his position at the expense of scrapping an historic party tradition. Also, being among the most optimistic of men, he is confident he will be able, eventually though not now, to roll up even the necessary two-thirds.

—o—

More and more, interest in Washington is centering in the coming struggle at New York. The Cleveland convention, by contrast, will admittedly be a time and deadly dull affair. At New York, it will be an affray, not an affair, and not even one-to-four money can be found on the result.

Hiram Johnson, who at one time was expected to furnish fireworks for the Cleveland show, has fizzled. His notification that he releases delegates instructed for him indicates that his name will not even be placed in nomination.

But at New York—ah! There will be all kinds of fireworks from the Fiery Cross to the Double Cross!

GIANTS GAIN AS CUBS ARE IDLE; BUCS BEAT CARDS

BRAVES RALLY IN LATE INNINGS BUT GIANT LEAD WAS TOO MUCH; SENATORS TRIM MACKS

While most of the clubs were enjoying a day off, the New York Giants took a fall out of the Boston Braves Monday and stretched their lead over the rest of the field. The Giants met the Braves at the Polo grounds for a postponed contest and beat the Bostonians, 9 to 6. The gap between the Cubs, who are in second place, is now two full games.

Only one other game was played in the National league. The Pirates won from the Cardinals in Pittsburgh, 6 to 2, and are only one game behind the fourth place Cincinnati Reds.

New York—The New York Nationals divided a two game series with Boston here, winning on Monday by a score of 9 to 6. Kelly scored four runs for New York and hit a home run, a double and a single.

Bucs 6, Cards 2

Pittsburgh—Carey's home run with Cuyler on base in the eighth inning gave Pittsburgh the lead over St. Louis, the Pirates winning Monday's game, 6 to 2. Three additional runs were scored in the batting rally that followed Carey's drive.

Senators 8, Macks 3

Philadelphia—Washington and Philadelphia stopped off here on Monday on the way west for a single game and the Senators won, 8 to 3.

Heimach received poor support from the infield and several hits that should have been fielded gave the visitors a lead that the home team could not overcome. Walter Johnson fanned seven batters.

Joe Hauser hit his seventh homer of the season in the eighth inning.

Indians 10, Hens 4

Toledo—Indianapolis batters had a field day at the expense of three Toledo pitchers on Monday, the Hoosiers taking the opening game of the series, 10 to 4, hammering out fifteen hits. Ketchum, who started the game was knocked out of the box in the first inning, and Frey, who suceeded him, fared little better. Krueger and Allen hit home runs for the Indians.

Saints 10, Brewers 8

Milwaukee—Two rallies, one in the seventh and the other in ninth, were not enough to win and the Milwaukee Brewers fell before the Saints 10-8 in eleven innings.

MICKEY WALKER DEFEATS TENDLER

WELTER CHAMP OUTPOINTS PHILLY SOUTHPAW IN THRILLING BATTLE; DUNDEE RETURNED WINNER

(By Associated Press)

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, decisively defeated challenger Lew Tendler of this city in their ten round bout here Monday night, receiving the unanimous decision of the judges.

Walker had Tendler staggering time and again in the early rounds, which were featured by furious exchanges. In the eighth a hard left to the jaw staggered the champion and at the bell they were in a fierce exchange. It was one of the most sensational fights seen here in months.

Vicentini Beaten

New York—Johnny Dundee, holder of the featherweight and junior lightweight titles, won the decision over Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight in a fifteen round bout here last night. Neither of Dundee's titles were at stake.

Tom Pleased Over Carp Bout; Wants Crack at Dempsey

Chicago—Elated over the ease with which he gave Georges Carpentier a boxing lesson, Tommy Gibbons has commenced an effort to induce Jack Dempsey to meet him a second time. En route to his home in St. Paul, from his training quarters at Grand Beach, Ind., Gibbons said he believed his decisive victory over Carpentier had entitled him to another chance at the world's heavyweight champion.

"I never was in better shape in my life," Gibbons declared; "and I intend to keep myself in condition. I am entitled to another try at Dempsey and I am sure he will not get the decision next time."

Just before the Gibbons-Carpentier bout commenced last Saturday at Michigan City, a challenge for the winner was received from Dempsey.

Because of his success with the mill last Saturday, which an immense crowd witnessed, Floyd Fitzsimmons is said to be casting longing eyes on the prospect of a Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

Rickard Pleads Not Guilty to Film Transportation

Newark, N. J.—Tex Rickard, Fred C. Quimby and Frank B. Flournoy of New York on Monday were arraigned before Federal Judge Lynch and pleaded not guilty to indictments charging illegal transportation of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight films. A similar plea was entered by Fred C. Quimby and Flournoy furnished bonds of $2,500 each and were released.

Jasper C. Munn, indicted with them, delayed making an appearance in court until he had completed arrangements for furnishing bail. Counsel for the defendants indicated that a move would be made to test the validity of the indictments.

Pastor Doubts That Golf Links Is Place to Worship

Ypsilanti—Doubt that golfers can worship God quite as well on the links as they could in church was expressed by the Rev. Carl H. Elliot of the Presbyterian church in an address urging proper observance of the Sabbath.

"Men insist that they can worship God as well as in the woods or on the golf links," the pastor said.

"Perhaps they can. Jesus and his disciples did.

"But does the man who neglects the public assembly for worship really worship God on the links." Some cynical observer has said that the only addressing of Deity on the part of the Sunday golfer is likely to be imprecations upon the head of his caddy or at the ball for failure to follow his aim."

Cleveland—Golf is the most selfish game in the world, Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois coach, declared in an address at a reunion of the alumni of Case School of Applied Science. "I play it myself, but it is noncompetitive and develops champion 'crabs' and 'cussers,'" Zuppke said.

WISCONSIN CREW OFF TO REGATTA

BADGERS ONLY MIDWEST SCHOOL ENTERED AT POUGHKEEPSIE; COACH DOES NOT EXPECT VICTORY

Madison, Wis., June 3.—Wisconsin's crew, under the direction of Coach H. E. (Dad) Vail, left Madison late yesterday for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where on June 17, the Badgers will compete in the national intercollegiate regatta for the first time in ten years.

The Badger team was given a royal send off by students and followers.

The following compose the squad which went east: Captain Schuetz, Johnson, Bentson, Jones, Sly, Schuman, Teckemeyer, Jax, Grunitz, Gardner, Arey and Coulter.

Drs. Bundy and J. F. Pyre, athletic advisors, accompanied the team on the trip.

The Badgers went through their last strenuous workout on Lake Mendota Saturday. As soon as the team arrives in the east, it will go through extended tryouts on the Hudson river for several days before the meet.

Wisconsin is the only mid-western school to enter the meet, it is said. Although Coach Vail admitted he does not expect the Badger team to win in the rowing classic, he declares that this will be a start and he hopes to see Wisconsin in each contest hereafter.

Perhaps the worst job on earth is being a diplomat and having to smile when you feel like cussing.

Miner Baseball Team Gets Away to Winning Start

Finley, Wis.—The Miner baseball team, defeated only once in 1923, got away to a winning start for the present season by defeating Nekoosa, 12 to 10. Both teams played exceptionally good ball throughout the game, which was marred only by a couple of fumbles by Nekoosa. Mc Lellan and Burke were the batteries for Miner and Pakan and Simmet for Nekoosa.

Miner is scheduled to play Necedah June 8 on the Miner diamond, and the team is confident of another victory.

"Puffing Bill the Second" Coaxed to Run in Munich

Munich—"Puffing Bill the Second," which is a reproduction of "Puffing Bill the First," the oldest locomotive in existence, now in the Kensington Museum in London, apparently does not like the atmosphere of Munich. Although German engineers went to London in 1905 and made drawings from which the Munich machine was built, no effort was made to run it until a short time ago. At first the strange old engine refused to budge. It emitted large quantities of smoke, but was balky and stubborn.

Both the engineer and the fireman were dressed in the garb of 100 years ago and wore brown silk hats, which greatly amused the spectators who watched their efforts to persuade the locomotive to run on the miniature track built on Museum Island. At last they mastered the creature, and coaxed it into several trips.

"Puffing Bill the Second" is a 25-horsepower affair, and is supposed to have a speed of 6 miles an hour.

Olympic Swimming Pool Largest in the World

Paris—The Olympic swimming pool at the Porte des Lilas, across the city of Paris from the Athletic Stadium at Colombes, is practically completed.

Long delays in construction and the immense cost, for the pool will stand the City of Paris 10,000,000 francs when completed, have caused to flow as much ink as would fill it; but the Olympic officials are sanguine that no further criticism will be forthcoming, and they are already claiming the distinction of having "the greatest swimming pool in the world."

The pool itself is 50 yards in length by 18 wide and five deep at the deeper end.

Accommodation for 10,000 people is provided in the Stadium which surrounds the pool and 40 dressing rooms are distributed underneath the stands. They comprise 750 separate cabins, permitting that number of athletes to dress at the same time.

The French realize that they have spent a lot of money in this affair, but the stadium was only the pretext; the swimming pool was the object. They say they have built a solid monument to water sports which will stand long after the 1924 Olympic games are forgotten.

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen:

Your "Krumbled Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple. Yours truly,

Arlington H. Carman,
Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary brans. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

The LAND OF FORGOTTEN MEN

by Edison Marshall

Released by NEA Service, Inc. Copyright 1923 by Little, Brown & Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Bigf Chris Larson, Alaska cannery foreman, and the hard-drinking Remittance Man meet in a small Alaskan cove. They join a cannery launch which puts out to answer a distress signal at sea. The Remittance Man forces his sea jacket upon Big Chris, and finds solace in the possibility of freezing to death when he considers he cannot return to Dorothy and his home in Georgia because of a tragedy. The launch hits rocks.

Dorothy Newhall, Augusta, Ga., is informed by telegram from Pirate Cove, Alaska, that her husband, Peter Newhall, was drowned when a cannery launch hit rocks while going to the aid of a ship in distress. Body was identified by papers in his sea jacket and it was buried there. She permits Ivan Ishmin, Russian violinist, to call.

Peter, it seems, while drunk, had thrown Ishmin's secretary into the Savannah river after the secretary had interfered in a quarrel between Peter and Ishmin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

In a moment Ivan himself was standing at her side, his countenance clouded in sympathy for her. She was ever amazed at this man. He was tall and looked slender; but she knew, the iron in those long, easily flowing muscles. There was a darkness, a foreign look in his handsome face that fascinated her even as it estranged her, something oriental and mysterious that she could not exactly trace or analyze.

He had come out of Russia at the beginning of the revolution, and was hailed at once as a new master of the violin. Before that time he was widely known in the theater of Petrograd and the Russian court, but he had not cared to seek laurels abroad.

"My dear girl!" he told her, his thin face lighting. He took her hand, bowed, and touched it to his lips. They then took seats, side by side, on the big divan. His voice streamed on, comforting, cheering not only with his carefully chosen though swift-flowing words, but by exquisite modulation of its tones.

"I suppose you'll never forgive me," he said at last, in a more quiet hour.

"I don't see how I owe you anything but gratitude—"

"You know what I mean. You remember—that morning—after the trouble. You remember that when Peter wakened from his drunken sleep and could not remember the fight on the deck at all, he wanted to stay and fight the thing through the courts? It was I, you remember—of course with your help—who induced him to flee. And his flight has ended—by that." He pointed to the telegram.

"I don't see how it can be held against you, in the least degree," Dorothy assured him earnestly. "You were kind—generous—wonderful all the way through." Her voice dropped a tone. "Besides, this is no worse—better, in fact—that he should die doing a decent thing—going to the help of a sinking ship—than to die—in the prison on Elbert Street!"

"There would have been some way out! Life imprisonment, at the worst."

"Life imprisonment! No, Ivan—not for Peter. Liberty was always a passion with him—with all his race, for that matter—and he'd rather be dead than in prison. I've got that consolation at least."

"How amazed I am that this should come from the North when we both supposed he was in South America."

She looked at him quickly. There was no doubt about the genuineness of this amazement. He saw her look of surprise and turned quickly in explanation. —"He took such a chance, Dorothy! I had a perfect course laid out for him—one that no one could have followed—but up there, in American terirtory, he was in hourly risk of arrest! It frightens me to think of the risk he ran—"

"But there is no risk now!" she told him grimly. "He's past all that—"

"Yes. Perhaps it's for the best. Try not to mourn too much, little girl."

To turn the current of her thought he took his violin—a marvelous thing of shell-like mahogany—from its case, and standing beside the window, he began to play.

He was telling her of his love—a love that would go through fire or water, triumph or disgrace. It was a love that glorified her, but yet it some way appalled her, too.

It was not the kind of love that Peter had given her—tender, almost fatherly, a tolerant, protective love and yet strong with that eternal strength of the Anglo-Saxon. Peter had been bitterly jealous at last, but it had taken many little indiscretions——harmless, truly, but yet doubtless intolerable from his point of view—to make him so. She would not dare play thus with Ivan! His jealousy would be like a firebrand, his hate like a dagger blade.

CHAPTER III

Peter's Rescue

When Peter Newhall was hurled into that awful sea he had no shadow of a dream but that this was his last conscious instant. There was no battling those mountainous waves, and the jagged edges of the cruel rocks would destroy him in a moment. Yet, as always in the last degree of crisis, the instant was one of marvelous clarity of thought.

Not merely the physical body strengthens and gathers reserve power in a crisis. The mental powers are likewise enhanced, encompassing a whole world in one glance, the breadth of many years in an instant. "It's the end," Peter told himself in one flash of blinding light.

In that instant he thought of Dorothy. Her image was just as plain, just as vivid in that eerie gray dawn as if he had just left her side. The enchanted hours that he had spent with her passed instantaneous review before him—those hours before Ivan had ever appeared with his heavenly music, before the world had come to be too much with him and with her, the wife at his side. In that terrible instant his heart cried out to her as it had never done in the fullness of their happiness. She was his own, his wife, the woman that God had given him, and he wanted her beyond any reach of words or thought.

There was an abiding quality of strength in him yet—for all these last months of debauchery—and his last impulse was in prayer for her. He wanted her destiny to be serene; his last breath of vivid consciousness before he felt the first, shattering impact of his body against the crags was given to her, wholly and without reservation.

The first blow against the crags almost knocked him unconscious; thereafter the struggle in that tempestuous sea was like a gray dream.

Instinctively he threshed about in the water to save the killing impact on his head, but he was only partially able to break the force of the blow. The knife edge of the crag sliced down across his face, gouging and tearing as it went, and through the inner passages to his ears he had heard his jawbone crack apart. Again the waves caught him, lifting him high, and again he was sped forward swift as a dolphin dashing through green water.

Half-conscious, he waited for the shattering blow that would mean the end.

But it did not come. The wave spent itself; then, as it rolled back, dropped him on gray, smooth rocks that were lifted above the water. In that dim instant he saw the gray line of the shore not a hundred feet beyond.

The waves had carried him, as if by miracle, through a gap in the reefs. Instantly a fighting spirit welled back in him: if he could hold on, keep consciousness a moment more, he might easily be washed ashore.

The waves caught him again, lifted him up, and he fought hard against them to avoid the full power of the shattering blow when they laid him down. He was fifty feet nearer now, and as the wave went out, he struggled ahead to avoid being inundated by the next wave. And almost at once he was staggering on the shore, saved as if by miracle, in the icy, brightening dawn.

Still in his half-dream he shook the salt from his eyes and looked about him. It did not surprise him that a ship should be lying just without the reefs, tugging at her strong anchor chain, or that closer view should reveal a stout dory manned with a full crew that had evidently been launched in an attempt to rescue drowning men. At first no reasonable explanation for her presence occured to him: it was simply part of the miracle that had borne him alive through the reefs. Yet in a moment he had guessed the truth; that this was a wandering trader who had answered the same appeal for help that had sped the Jupiter to her destruction.

The ship they had come to save was beyond the reach of help. She was a small, auxiliary schooner; the dawn showed part of her stern and her broken, floating masts where she had gone down. Of the Jupiter there was nothing whatever to be seen.

He did not believe his rescue could be accomplished for some moments at least, so he took the only possible course to keep the blood moving in his veins—he got to his feet and struggled up and down the shore. The fact that the exercise caused a more active flow from his wounds could not be taken into consideration; it was better to risk death from loss of blood than to die swiftly and surely from freezing. But already the men in the dory had seen him and were trying to push into the little cove between the reefs. Still he ran back and forth, only half-conscious.

Blond, rugged men had gathered about him and were ministering to him when the last of his dim consciousness departed. When he opened his eyes he was on a clean bunk, and a little group of men—none of whom he could ever remember seeing before—were working about him.

One of them, he guessed presently, was acting as ship's doctor: his hands were scrubbed till the skin was pink, he wore a white apron, and his look was very businesslike. He was talking quietly with two of the ship's officers as he sterilized a set of villainous-looking surgeon's tools.

Their conversation drifted faintly to Peter's ears. "Dis is quite a fe'der in your cap, Bill," one of the sailors was saying in the good-humored, subdued voice that is the peculiar characteristic of a certain great breed of seafarers.

ciety, especially in the case of the unfortunate and incapable.

3. To assist in the organization of units for social work and to urge co-ordination and co-operation of forces already existing, under one head.

4. Finally the distinct function of an organization and as individuals, that we hold to proper standards of social work and community life generally.

Concluding, Mrs. Witter said, "Let us make of this organization a living, vital thing, which is the concern of every thinking man and woman in Wisconsin."

Will Discuss Problems

Wisconsin's social welfare problems, rural, urban and institutional, will be discussed from many angles by social welfare workers of the state during the three day convention. Welfare agencies throughout the state are represented at the conference.

National authorities on social problems are scheduled to appear before the conference. Boyd, Hull House, Chicago; Dr. O. P. Kimball, Cleveland and C. M. Bookman, Cincinnati.

Say Failure to Signal Turn Cause of Accident

That the failure of Joseph Rick, driver of a Ford coupe which was damaged in a collision with a car driven by A. J. The Rick car swung out at Thirteenth avenue and the crash occurred when he swung back into Grand avenue with the apparent intention of making a turn in the opposite direction.

FEW UNDERWEIGHT IN SCHOOLS NOW

COMPARISON OF NUMBER OF UNDERWEIGHTS AT BEGINNING OF YEAR AND NOW SHOWS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Underweight children in the public and parochial schools of Wisconsin Rapids have been reduced from 13 percent at the beginning of school last fall to 4 percent in May, leaving only 4 percent of the children still underweight, according to figures submitted for publication by Miss Amelia Schroedel, health instructor in the schools of the city. There were 144 underweight children last fall in the school, which has been reduced to 65, a reduction of 54 per cent.

Goiters Cured

Since October, 1923, goiter preventive has been given to 627 girls in the graded and parochial schools, with the consent of the parents. While this is primarily a preventative, there are even at this early date a number of cases in which there has been a marked reduction of existing goiters. This work was financed by the Public Health committee of the Federation of Women's clubs, the Parent-Teacher associations and several church organizations.

A total of 1,639 pupils were examined, 74 by local doctors and 16 at the health center. Of 435 notices of defects sent to parents 260 or 60 percent of the defects were corrected.

Teach Health

Health instruction and the keeping of health rules was made a regular part of the daily program in the public schools during the year, and health standings were given on the report cards making health a more vital part of the school work.
